Two-dimensional shapes: Most of the art we see is two-dimensional: a drawing, a painting, a print or a photograph which is usually viewed as a flat surface. Most two-dimensional art tries to create the illusion of three dimensions by combining the visual elements to a greater or lesser degree. In Escher's lithograph, the artist is playing with the illusion of two and three-dimensions in the ...

Self Portrait. Self Portrait shows Tanning as a young woman with her head on her hand looking out at the viewer in a typically reflective artist's pose. Her drawing shows good technical skill and gives special attention to the detail of her hair. The isolated study of the eye to the left of the page is perhaps the most interesting aspect of the picture and links to Surrealist tendencies that ...
